Dave "Seymour" Haworth served more than 20 years as a fighter pilot and Commander in the U.S. Air Force, and later served as the Chief of Foreign Military Sales for the U.S. Embassy Qatar where he was responsible for the United States government's $20 billion sales program. He uses this experience and insight to support clients with Foreign Military Sales (FMS) and direct commercial sales programs and ensure successful delivery of multi-billion-dollar programs for key U.S. partners and allies.

Seymour has an operations background as an A-10 and F-16 pilot as well as a program manager with the Air Force, including experience around the globe. He has completed a variety of staff functions, including postings at the Pentagon in Washington, D.C., as well as a Director at the Combine Air Operations Center in Qatar prior to his military retirement. Seymour is a command pilot with over 3,000 fighter hours.

He earned his bachelor's degree from the U.S. Air Force Academy, master's degrees from University of Colorado-Colorado Springs and the American Military University and is a graduate of the NATO Senior Defense College in Rome, Italy.
